

The Real Girl's Guide to Everything Else

(Season 2, Shooting Fall 2010) When Rasha's manifesto on Afghan women's civil rights is greenlit into a star-studded musical extravaganza, the girls find themselves in a world of more sparkle than substance. From Sydney's obsession with The Office's Mindy Kaling, to Rasha's encounter with Rock 'n Roll Jesus... Season 2 proves that Season 1, Taliban and all, was just the beginning.

(Season 1, released February 2010) In this first six-episode season created by Carmen Elena Mitchell (MTV/Pocket Books winner), shot by Emmy-award winning cinematographer Robert C. Webb and directed by Heather de Michele (Best Director- Long Beach Q Fest), we follow Rasha played by Robin Daléa (Without a Trace, What I like about You) a Lebanese lesbian and political journalist on her quest to write a book about the Afghan women's struggle for civil rights. However, in order to finance this dream project, she decides to write a more marketable "chick-lit" book first, forcing her to go undercover as a Cosmo-drinking, shoe-obsessed, straight girlie-girl to research a world outside her comfort zone.
